

Notable & Quotable

Feminist Brandeis law professor Deborah Stone explaining sexual harassment in the Winter 1992 issue of the liberal quarterly, The American Prospect:

The only just criterion in a harassment case is whether the woman felt she had the freedom to resist, without taking career risks. Is that unfair to men? Are men supposed to be mind-readers, you ask? Well, yes.